EngineeringCareerCoach.com

Anthony Fasano, PE, bestselling author of Engineer Your Own Success, is known in the engineering industry as the engineering career coach because he has helped countless engineers create extraordinary careers.

Like many engineers, Anthony struggled early on in his engineering career just trying to figure out where he wanted to go in the industry and how to get there. He soon realized that most successful engineers had a combination of good technical skills and dynamic interpersonal skills. After realizing that, and developing his non-technical skills, Anthony went on to become a partner at a highly regarded engineering firm at just 27 years old.

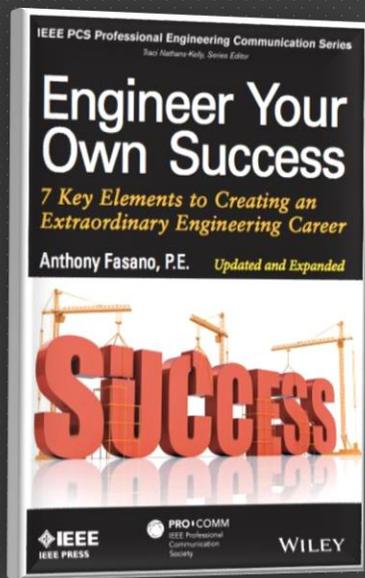

At that time Anthony decided his goal was to help all engineers develop their non-technical or core skills to put them in a position to achieve their career goals and dreams. He has since attended one of the top-ranked career coaching schools and spoken in front of thousands of engineers on career and leadership development. He now travels the world focusing solely on helping engineers and engineering organizations grow and succeed. He is the host of the popular iTunes podcast: The Engineering Career Coach.
